green is the new black.

Ecological or environmental was something for outsiders and eccentrics in the past. Today ecological and environmental home and living have become mainstream. More people rethink their way of life as environmental protection and accountability become more and more the norm.

We think protecting the environment can be done fashionably and stylishly. Our new “eco” designed fabrics, all produced according to high environmental standards, do not lack modern style and comfort. No need to compromise with these nature friendly and sustainably produced fabrics.
organic.

Fashion, style and a conscientious approach to nature and the environment are by no means mutually exclusive.

Organic stands for fabrics that are woven from GOTS certified cotton. The natural fibre has been grown without pesticides and fertilizers and is free of chemical additives. This protects the environment.
